Foreword

¶ Gentle Reader, The Alphean makes its initial bow and presents itself for your approval. It greets you with the natural diffidence born of a first appearance. If you are of the upper classes, your wide experience in annuals may render your criticism a trifle severe, but nevertheless it hopes that you will find it an agreeable companion and that it will find you a warm friend was born in Wilmington, but in early childhood her parents moved to Malden, where she received her early education in the public schools. Soon after graduating from the High School she began her career as a teacher in the Malden public schools and was principal of one of these schools for a time. Later Miss Bell took a course in the Salem Normal School, after which she spent two years in Europe perfecting herself in French and German. Upon returning she was chosen to teach modern languages in the Holyoke High School where she remained for seven years. Then, after going abroad for another year, Miss Bell returned to Holyoke. She remained only a year, however, and resigned to accept the charge of the modern language department of the Springfield High School. She ably filled this position for the remaining seven years of her life.

Miss Beulah Hosmer Bell

The teachers of the Springfield High School desire to express their sense of the great loss that has come to them personally and to the school in the death of their associate and friend, Beulah Hosmer Bell.

Her work was marked by industry, patience and devotion, and through her sincerity, her sympathy, her strength of purpose and high character she was a power in the upbuilding of the school and for influencing in an unusual degree the hearts and minds of her pupils.

The high standards of attainment which she set for herself and for her classes is shown in the success won by her pupils in school and college.

Miss Bell's service to the school was not bounded by her class room. Her spirit of unselfishness, her devotion and her thoughtful sympathy was an inspiration to both pupils and teachers and this influence was felt with growing power in these latter years of her service.

The Freshman

Freshman Class History

IT IS difficult to write a history of the Freshman class because nobody knows anything about Freshmen and, as a rule, they know very little about themselves. However, it was up to me to write one, so one day at recess I cornered a typical specimen and proceeded to get at the facts in the case.

"Let me go," he cried, wriggling violently, for I had him by the collar, "I was just having a splendid game of tag with Anderson, Ball, and 'Johnny' Wilbur."

"I'm sorry to interrupt your play," I replied, "but I wish you to tell me something about the class of 1906, of which, judging by the length or rather shortness of your trousers, I take you to be a member. I am aware that Parker and Cunliffe have won their 'S' and I have an indistinct memory of having heard something remarkable about Ellis; but otherwise I am in complete ignorance. Can you enlighten me?"

"What does enlighten mean?" asked the little fellow.

When I had explained, he gave me the following somewhat illogical account. I know it sounds like a sight translation but as I took it down verbatim (Cushman system of shorthand) you must lay the blame on the Freshman.

"The two most famous members of our class," he began, "are MacDiarmid and Ball. MacDiarmid is our president and Ball got his name in the Homestead for playing ping-pong. Ellis can play ping-pong, too, and he is one of our star athletes and you know he won the inter-class trotting contest for us. Littlefield is a great athlete, too, and you should see Pirnie throw the hammer. He gets it out of the circle almost every time he doesn't drop it on his toe. But speaking of athletics, the Freshmen are the best bar-snappers in school and they're good lunch-snappers too. If you don't believe me, just go into the basement and see them eat.

THE ALPHEAN

Why, I heard a Junior say that it was better than watching the monkeys fed at the park.

“Do you see that boy with the clothes? It’s Tift. His pants are almost as vivid as his big brother’s. Wilbur is another fellow that dresses so you could see him in the dark; but then he’s on the ‘Recorder.’ Ray Smith is the best behaved boy in the class. He never speaks unless spoken to and generally not then. That fellow over there with an open book in his hand and two under each arm is Ray Dunning. He’ll be as famous as Mr. Dunning, the senior,—if he lives. Here come the Dumbleton twins. They look so much alike you can’t tell them apart except when they’re together. See that sweet, rosy little fellow coming up the street. That is Forest Mather and I guess he’s been down to the gym. showing Murray and Mr. Pollard how to play basket ball. Do you wonder that one of the Sophomore girls thinks he is about the whole thing? Our girls? Do you know any of them? No? Neither do I.

“Did they haze us when we first got here? Well I should smile. Manning made me climb a tree. No, he was n’t very gentle. I went up by the trunk route and came down by the air line; but that was n’t half so bad as being ducked in the aquarium. Why Pirnie was nearly drowned. You see when they were doing it he kicked and they dropped him right in. It required the united efforts of the janitor to get him out. But there goes the bell. Please let me go or I shall be late and get sent to the office. That will make the fourth time this week and it’s only Wednesday and anyway I hate to bother Mr. Orr.”

“All right,” said I, “run along.”

The Sophomore

Sophomore Class History

THE hands of the clock were fast approaching the figure 12 on the dial, and the lamp was burning low, as I closed my "Ivanhoe." I had performed the heroic feat of reading the book through at one sitting and should have sought my downy couch, but nevertheless I sat up musing on what I had read. I had just begun to think how like Broadhurst Wamba must have been, when suddenly I felt myself falling through space. The terrific speed of my descent took away my senses, and when I came to I found myself on the queerest craft imaginable. It resembled a huge scow with a flat-roofed house in the center, and no visible means of propulsion. Around the craft flowed a black, sluggish-looking river.

An old man who had been sweeping off the deck approached and accosted me with: "You're another one of those Sophomores, I suppose. Do you know where you are?" Upon my answering in the negative he said: "This is the House-boat on the Styx and I am Charon. A while ago two shades, who said that they were Tifft and Robbins, and that they belonged to the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Five of the Springfield High School, arrived in Hades. They had n't been there two days before they thought they owned the ranch. Pluto was afraid that they would usurp his place, so he had me fix up this craft. They can't do any harm here. All the Sophomores are taken here as fast as they arrive in Hades. I wish I was back in the ferry business. If it wasn't for Miss Seymour and the other pretty girl shades, I would have thrown up my job long ago. We have here an elaborate system of tortures especially suited to the deserts of the class of 1905. I will show you over the place before you are awarded your punishment." So saying he took a bunch of keys from his tunic and started to open the first door in the house, when we heard a terrific splash and shout for aid. I started to run to render it if necessary, when Charon checked me, saying: "It's only Bidwell and Margeson giving Pezzini his morning bath in the Styx. It amuses them and takes some of the freshness out of him, so I let 'em do it." In the first room were two shades with their heads in steel vises, which of themselves kept growing tighter and tighter. "Those fellows," said my guide, "are Mitchell and Banty Robertson, and the vises are to reduce the swelling. There are lots of milder cases, like Besse and Craig, who have only to wear iron hoops. In the next room all the girls who have turned a deaf ear to Miss Stratton's ('03) appeal to debate are forced to listen daily to a Woman's Rights lecture by Miss Robinson. The three girls near the door who are clad in armor are Miss Tait and the Samble girls. They have been admitted to the Amazons on account of their basket ball training, and act as a guard to see that no girls escape." I shuddered at the thought of this terrible punishment, but Charon said: "Pshaw, that's nothing; wait till you see the next room." Sure enough, in a sound-proof apartment Robbins, Tower, and the other members of the Mandolin Club were forced to listen all day long to the endless flow of conversation from Sellew and "Chat-terbox" Crane, who were perched in cages high upon the wall. Sellew told continually of the terrible Senior who mistook him for a Freshman, while Crane talked about the girls. "That," said the old man, "is what those fellows get for making such villainous music." "I think," said I, "that the punishment is greater than the crime." "The class of 1905," remarked Charon, "contains a greater aggregation of freaks than any museum. There is Gould, the Bearded Infant; Williams, the Human Step-Ladder; Kidder, the Modern Samson; Dexter, the Boy Orator—" just then a weak voice from the water's edge called upon Charon to help him up. "That's Ritchie. He's been diving all over the bottom of the Styx for Pearls, because Margeson said the Freshman girls became mermaids in the Styx, and he ought to know, but"—I rubbed my eyes. Yes, I had been asleep, but my dream was a terrible warning of the future.

The Junior

Junior Class History

With Foot-Notes

“S. H. S., Naughty Four”! How inspiring!¹ What a host of Murphys, Taylors, Kings, and Elseys crowd down on us as we read those words! What glorious recollections of a dim but happy past assail our memories! A history you say? Write a history of the Junior class? Truly 'tis a feat² at which Herodotus himself might quake with fear.

Well, nevertheless we're a very important class.³ In the first place we have Barrett⁴; in the second place we have class spirit—witness the straw ride; in the third place we have a pretty good opinion of ourselves anyway.⁵

As Freshmen, it must be acknowledged we did n't amount to much.⁶ However, we demonstrated our ability in athletics by winning fourth place in the field meet through the strenuous efforts of Dewey, Collins, Ladd and other athletes(?). Another act was the raising of a villainous-looking black and white flag in place of the Seniors' banner. This ended disastrously for us,⁷ however, and the Seniors were seen the next morning wearing shreds of our flag in their buttonholes. [Note: We have n't yet paid for the steeple-jack.] Another deep-seated plot was the attempt to pinch '01's ice-cream on their class day; instead we almost got pinched ourselves.⁸

Sophomore year was uneventful except for the acquisition of Flynt and those brass dishes known as the 1904 class pins. However it was during this year that several of our members

¹ Sarcasm.

² Especially Stone's.

³ In our own opinions.

⁴ We're sorry we have, too.

⁵ This is an axiom.

⁶ We do n't, anyway.

⁷ As usual.

⁸ Excuse slang, borrowed from Blodgett.

THE ALPHEAN

learned something.⁹ Jake learned how to fuss, Southmayd how to dance, Elsey how to play pool, and Miss Spooner and Miss Hopler about everything.

This year has been the crowning one for us. We won the football championship,¹⁰ ran a successful "Recorder," and last, but not least, we had the straw ride. Now we must n't say much about the straw ride because it is a tender subject to Blodgett, Hume, Baker,¹¹ Woods,¹² and a few others; but it was surely the only thing needed to earn for us the name and fame of being the most independent, wide awake, and progressive class in school.¹³

The excitement's over now and we are winding up the third year's work with the anticipation of soon being dignified Seniors; and, at the end of next year, the great and glorious class of 1904 will leave old S. H. S.¹⁴ and bestow its talents on the world.¹⁵

⁹ Stearns did n't.

¹⁰ It was a mistake.

¹¹ He was n't there.

¹² He was there.

¹³ This is a lie.

¹⁴ Congratulations to old S. H. S.

¹⁵ Commiserations to the world.

The Senior

Senior Class History

YES, ladies and gentlemen, this third floor is devoted entirely to the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Three and its interests. The first floor above is taken up with the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Four, Nineteen Hundred and Five being two stories above, and so on, the Class of Two Thousand occupying the handle of this flatiron building.

This Class of Nineteen Hundred and Three was a very famous class. At its calling, men of world-wide reputation gathered to show their loyalty to dear old S. H. S. and Nineteen Hundred and Three. Although Dr. Ballantine, aged 107, is the only one of this renowned class living, in this year 2000, you can, in the few rooms on this floor, gain some very interesting facts concerning Nineteen Hundred and Three.

This room here is devoted to their library. By the best of critics this unique collection of books is considered most valuable. These seventy-nine volumes contain Dr. Chandler's philosophical speculations on physiological psychology. Written in the heroic-triplet, they are an excellent example of Imagination's cross country running,—Springfield to Northampton. Up there on the twenty-ninth shelf are one hundred and three volumes by Prof. Bierman, dealing with the legends, myths, manners and customs of the ancients. These forty-nine volumes contain a short treatise on the subject of Perpetual Motion, written by Wallace and fully illustrated by Quinnell. This child's edition of "Beauty and the Beast" was edited by Paul Morrissey and Lillian Richards. Miss Clark compiled this pocket edition of two volumes on the McDuffee method. That chair there will ever be preserved, made famous by its former occupant. Yes, Senator Dunning sat in that chair when he wrote his widely read, "Non-existence as compared to What Is." This table in the centre of the room, historic because on it the first constitution and by-laws of the Students' Union were signed by the student body, now contains the motions of this class that were laid on the table. The work of collecting these motions on parchment was the toilsome task of that industrious journalist Mr. Burnham, for years the recognized authority on parliamentary law. He was aided somewhat in its performance by the late Hon. Samuel Bowles, grandfather of the present Samuel.

The dramatic ability displayed by this class was certainly remarkable. In their greatest success, "She Stoops to Conquer," Donald Robbins, class president, played leading lady,—I should say gentleman,—supported by Miss Winifred of the winsome smile; Florence Besse, the late missionary in the snowy regions; Mr. Scott, the prime mover in the formation of the athletic trust; and many others of no small reputation.

This was the room of the Harvest Club, the scene of many a warm debate. The large picture over yonder is that of the president, Daniel Burbank. Just to the left is Mr. Warner's life size painting of Secretary Allen. The Jinorchard members of the club, led by Lanckton, formerly head of the Corwin combine, broke with the general club, and for some time, along in the thirties, held their meetings in the Ruxton city hall.

Now let us take this escalator to the roof-gardens from whence we may board the air ship Acorinne. It may be interesting to recall that air ships, so important a factor now, were made a commercial success by Prof. Chapman of this class. Of course, the professor's greatest success was the establishing of our remarkable system of chapgraming to Mars. Well, here we are on the roof-gardens, half a kilometre high. 'T is indeed a dizzy height. But what person or class would not be dizzy at the sight of the lofty preëminence of the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Three.

The Amherst Cup Debate

ON TUESDAY, the 7th of April, the annual Cup Debate was held in the High School hall, and, as a result, the second name to be engraved upon the trophy is that of Andrew Raymond Robertson.

The question, "Resolved, That Labor Unions should be compelled to incorporate," was debated by Agnes A. Hahn, '04, Robert D. Burnham, '03, and Perley H. Dexter, '05, on the affirmative, and by Leon Southmayd, '04, Margaret W. Robinson, '05, and A. Raymond Robertson, '05, on the negative. Mr. Charles H. Beckwith presided, and Messrs. Hiller C. Wellman, Henry H. Bosworth and Walter V. McDuffee acted as judges.

Mr. Beckwith, in his introductory speech, gave a very interesting account of the history and purpose of the Amherst Cup. The speakers were then allowed nine minutes for their arguments and three minutes for their rebuttal. Then, while the judges withdrew to make their decision, the Mandolin Club rendered several selections. The announcement of the winner closed the evening's program.

The debate was held in the evening instead of in the morning as last year, and this innovation proved its value. The arguments, too, showed an improvement over last year, and in every way the evening was most successful. It is greatly to be hoped that this debate will reawaken the interest of the school in public speaking.

Football

DESPITE the fact that we lost three of the five games played, the word successful can be truthfully applied to this year's football season and this is so for many reasons. There were more fellows out and they were more regular at practice than for several years past. The squad was so large, in fact, that a second team could be formed. Then the fellows put the right sort of spirit into the work. This was shown in the Wesleyan Academy game where our men put up a good fight against a much heavier team, and especially in the game with Holyoke. That contest was pluckily fought from start to finish and Springfield's great stand on her three-yard line will be long remembered by football enthusiasts. The game was in marked contrast to last year's half-hearted performance.

And now everything points to a winning team next year. Of those that played against Holyoke seven will return to school in the fall and there are many promising men, who were on the second or the class teams, to fill the vacant positions. Prophecies of this sort have too often failed of fulfilment; but, with the material at hand and with Mr. Pollard to develop it, it will be the fellows' own fault if the team is a losing one.

Inter-Class Games

For the first time a regular series of inter-class games was played and was so satisfactory that it will without doubt become an annual occurrence. These contests are directly in line with the modern tendency in athletics which aims to open the advantages of athletic competition and healthful exercise to as many as possible and not to reserve them to a few experts. Also as a method of developing material for the school team are these football games well worth while. They certainly aroused no end of interest and friendly rivalry and were all well contested.

The Girls' Basket Ball Team

ENCOURAGED by their success last year, those of the girls who are interested in basket ball formed two basket ball teams. After several weeks of practice, the present team was picked. Miss Emily O'Keefe was elected manager and acted as captain a part of the season. Owing to the small number of similar organizations in this vicinity but few games could be arranged. However, out of the five games played the girls won four, of which one was contested. The Athletic Association has granted the right of wearing an S to those of the Girls' Basket Ball Team who have played in three regular games.

Hockey

EVEN more interest was shown in hockey this year than last and a very good team was turned out. We had indeed the misfortune to be beaten twice by Hartford, but both games were well contested and interesting. Hockey has now an established place among our sports and with five members of this year's team back at school we should make a first-rate showing next winter.

The First Annual Indoor Meet

AN indoor meet and gymnasium exhibition was held this year with such success that it will probably become a regular feature of our school athletics. The meet took place on the evening of May 2d, in the City Hall. The members of the city government were invited to attend, in order that we might show them what good use we had been making of our new gymnasium privileges during the past winter.

About seventy boys took part in the marching and drill, and made a very good appearance in their white jerseys and dark trousers. The regular exercises were followed by games and then the floor was cleared for the contests. There was much rivalry between the classes, especially between the Juniors and Seniors and there was plenty of cheering and excitement during the events. The Seniors won with a total of 34 points, including those won in basket ball; while the Juniors got 21 points, the Freshmen 6, and the Sophomores 2.

The Summary

25-Yard Dash—Won by Johnson, 1903; Burnham, 1903, 2d; King, 1904, 3d; time, $3\frac{2}{3}$ seconds.

Running High Jump—Won by Murray, 1903; Albro, 1903, and Stock, 1905, tied for 2d; height, 5 feet.

Running Broad Jump—Won by Johnson, 1903; Murray, 1903, 2d; King, 1904, 3d; distance, 18 feet 9 inches.

Shot Put—Won by Coe, 1904; Hunn, 1903, 2d; Forté, 1903, 3d; distance, 35 feet 4 inches.

Potato Race—Tie between Allen, 1903, and Taylor, 1904; time, 37 seconds.

Inter-Class Basket Ball

IN connection with the indoor meet a series of inter-class basket ball games was played, the winner to get 10 points toward the indoor athletic championship, the next team 6 points, and the third team 3 points. The preliminary games were won by the Juniors over the Seniors, and the Freshmen over the Sophomores. In the finals between the losing teams the Seniors beat the Sophomores. In the deciding game the Juniors won from the Freshmen in a close and exciting contest. This game was played as a part of the indoor meet and the line-up is here given.

The Track Squad

The Seventh Annual Field Day

UNDER well nigh perfect conditions of weather and track the seventh annual inter-class field meet was held on May 9th at the training school grounds. It was conducted in a most satisfactory manner, the events being run off with remarkable celerity. Almost all last year's records were bettered, the improvement in the weights being especially noticeable; and in addition, four school records were broken.

Albro made the most noteworthy performance of the day, doing the high hurdles in $17\frac{2}{3}$ seconds, which is three-fifths of a second faster than both the school record and the record at Amherst. Neal signalized his entry into the athletics of our school by winning the 220-yard dash in $24\frac{1}{8}$ seconds, breaking the record by two-fifths of a second. Johnson added six inches to the previous record for the broad jump and also won the greatest number of points, 13 in all. Taylor smashed the pole vault record, which has stood for several years, with a vault of 9 feet $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

Almost all the contestants in the various events showed up well. Hunn proved himself a good all-around man in the weights, and with practice should be a point winner. Allen in the mile, and Loomis and Stone in the quarter, also did good work, and Dale's hammer-throwing was encouraging. As a whole, the meet showed a great advance over last year.

Rowing

A YEAR ago, at the close of school, an invitation was received from the Rockrimmon Boat Club to have a high school crew which was to row under their colors. The school voted to accept the offer and elected Smith, '04, manager and Moxom, '02, temporary captain. Both left school shortly after, and Gray, '03, and Southmayd, '04, were elected to their positions. Through an unfortunate circumstance the Rockrimmon Club had no boats for our use. But the Atlanta Boat Club came to the rescue and offered us their house and boats with no restrictions as to colors. Here the crew went to work and, under the direction of Mr. John Joyce, gradually molded into shape the foundation of the most ambitious of our school sports.

Mr. Joyce, who has given and is giving his time to the development of the crew, is a professional oarsman who ranked with the fastest men in the world, many, or rather most of whom, he has defeated at different times. Last year he and Capt. Southmayd attended the National Regatta at Worcester, where they interviewed several coaches of college and school crews, among whom was Mr. John Kennedy of Yale, with whom the prospect of a race with the Yale Freshmen was considered.

The preliminary season was closed by a race between two picked crews, the "Blues" and the "Whites," in which the latter were victorious. After the race Southmayd was elected captain for the ensuing year.

On March 30th the crew reported for work and started training in hopes of a race with the Yale Freshmen. A little later Mr. Kennedy visited the school and had a talk with Mr. Orr, Mr. Pollard, Mr. Gray, '03, and Mr. Southmayd, '04. The result was that shortly after he returned to Yale the school was presented with a beautiful Ruddick boat and the race with the Freshmen was assured.

THE ALPHEAN

In the meantime Gray left school and Shean, '05, was elected to his place as manager. A great deal of credit is due him for his faithful work with the crew.

On May 11th Mr. Joyce obtained his vacation, which he devoted to the crew, coaching them every afternoon from three o'clock to five and spending a great deal of time in rigging the boat. Mr. Murphy of the Atlanta Boat Club has also given much of his time to the crew.

The following is the crew which rowed against the Freshmen: Shean, cox.; Williams, stroke; Robbins, 7; Southmayd, 6; Woods, 5; Buxton, 4; McDiarmid, 3; Coe, 2; MacDonald, 1.

Baseball

THE NINE started out this year with high hopes and an apparent plenty of good material, but so far it has not been altogether a success. Pero is as good a pitcher as could be desired, and Augur is also effective at times, while Captain Maloney, behind the bat, plays a fairly steady game, though his throwing to bases is weak. The infield, however, is decidedly erratic, showing lack of practice at critical stages, and the outfield is also weak. Through an unfortunate accident in the game with the Amherst Freshmen, Stearns was injured so that he will be unable to play again this season, and in him the team loses one of its best men.

However, the fellows have an excellent coach in Gray, and with conscientious practice should be able to finish the season in good shape.

The batting order is: Lyons, rf; Gerrard, 2b; Maloney, c and captain; Morrissey, cf; Driscoll-Stearns, 1b; Pero, lf, p; Crowther, ss; Manning, 3b; Augur, p, lf.

As the Scholars See It

No more will the haughty Seniors
The schoolhouse flag pole climb,
On the night before school closes,
That their flag may be up in time.

No more will the Juniors gather
And try to haul it down;
Gone are the days of fighting,
And peaceful times abound.

Principal, teachers, policemen
Declared it should not be,
And now class spirit droops to earth;
How sad it is to see!

The scholars gather in the court,
And each class gives its yell;
"Swans" pulls up the Senior flag
And all seems very well.

But the old way was the best way;
For yells we do n't care a rap;
O, powers, please relent a bit
And let us have our scrap.

Help Wanted

WANTED—A second Sandow. As the team in which I usually carry my books home is broken I must have some one to help me with them. Some one who has carried stoves or acted as baggage smasher is desired.

HASKELL, '04.

Theatrical Notes.

HE three Johnsons ('03, '04 and '06) are starring this season in "Too Much Johnson."

Scott, '03, is touring the country as "The Greatest Thing in the World." Mr. Scott has played in this role for nearly twenty years, and any one who has ever seen him will support me in the statement that he is remarkably well fitted by nature for this part.

Senor Elsi has made a big hit as the magician in the "Wizard of Oz." His greatest feat is to change a borrowed nickel into a hot egg sandwich and then swallow the sandwich.

The way in which he makes cards disappear (into his pockets) never fails to mystify his audience.

The Senior class this year presented an amusing two-act comedy entitled "A Hot Old Time." The play is based on the election of a class photographer. The scenes in which Burnham, '03, and Miss Besse, '03, contend in a vocal duel and that in which the arrival of the Mechanic Arts delegation turns the tide of battle are very melodramatic.

Stearns, '04, has scored a big success this year as leading man in the "New Clown." Mr. Stearns' success is due in a large measure to his conscientious and life-long study of his part. Competent critics assert, however, that he is inferior to Broadhurst, '05, who, they say, is fitted by nature for the role.

"In Convict Stripes," the companion play to "What Happened to Brown" ('02), has for some time been playing to crowded benches. It is a side-splitting farce, having for its plot the numerous mishaps which Stone, '04, experiences, because his new spring suit is mistaken for one of the garments which the city supplies to its boarders on York Street.

Tickets for Wesson and Southmayd in "City Sports" will be on sale soon. Those wishing seats should speak in advance to their manager, A. N. Dewey. Between the first and second acts a boxing-match will be held between the heavy-weight champions, "Charlie" Hitchcock and "Kid" Uhl.

"Shack" Manning is playing for the third season as "Happy Hooligan," and it is likely that he will appear again next year in his popular role.

Quotations

Translation (per W. V. McD.): "When I was young, I desired to sit in the front seat in the auditorium."

Teacher: "Mr. Bowles, you may go on at sight."

Bowles, '03 (translating): "Oh, what shall I say?"

Teacher (correcting prose): "Mr. Dunning ['03], this is a mistake that Freshmen often make."

Stone, '04 (at an athletic association meeting): "There are two fellows whom I think it would be a credit to the school to send away and——"

Teacher: "Whom did George Washington marry?"

Miss Rockwell, '03: "I think he married a lady."

Mr. McDuffee: "Mr. Vanhorn, please go to work. You haven't done anything this period except to look at Mr. Wells or at me. I don't think you can learn anything from looking at Mr. Wells, and I'm not at all certain that you can from me."

A Sad Home-Coming

IT was a beautiful summer's evening as I was returning to my native town after an absence of twenty years. As I walked through the dank moist grass of the cemetery, I noticed a high pyramid of snowy marble raising its tapering shaft loftily in the ozone and shining with many colors as the rays of the setting sun fondly touched it with a last caress.

"Ha!" thought I, "something new! Probably some great man has lately died."

I slowly strolled over to the base of the grand monument and read the inscription. It was simple, but it brought tears to my eyes.

"Pause, O passer-by, and cast
Your pitying eye upon this last
Remembrance of the one who passed
And with the angels now is classed.

Blodgett his name—you knew him well,
Recorder chief for quite a spell—
He wrote that dream called 'Give us butts,'
And finally died from smokers' cuts."

The Corse Payton Comedy Company

The hero's always tall and dark,
The maiden small and fair;
The villain is a great, bold man
With coal-black, raven hair.

The lovers meet upon the porch
'Neath honeysuckle vines;
He clasps her gently in his arms
And spiebeth off his lines.

The villain bold comes rushing in,
A burglar at his side;
They grab the girl and off they scoot —
The hero they deride.

But now the play is nearly o'er;
The hero, he comes in,
Disguised by a black moustache,
The maiden fair to win.

They next meet in a gloomy glen;
The villain, he gets killed;
The hero and the girl are wed,
And everyone is thrilled.

The Alphean Alphabet

A Is for Allen, who runs like a streak,
But he is n't so good in his Latin and Greek.

B Stands for Blodgett, a typical grind ;
To hard work and study he 's deeply inclined.

C Is for Chapman, a tall chap is he ;
Whose mechanical genius is a wonder to me.

D Stands for Dunning, a debater of fame ;
That he 'll make a good lawyer you can tell by his name.

E Is the mark at which every one shudders,
Except Southmayd, Kidder, and just a few others.

F Is for Flynt, although not long resident
He 's well known to fame as the Juniors' great president.

G Stands for Gray, a youth very small,
Who hands out the tickets to one and to all.

H Is for Hitchcock, a prize fighter bold,
Whose great deeds of valor are strange to behold.

THE ALPHEAN

I Stands for Ingham, a shark at football,
Till he plays against Scott, when he looks pretty small.

J Is for George Johnson, a crack-a-jack jumper ;
When he sets out to sprint you can see he's a humper.

K Stands for King, a Junior quite tall ;
At recess he walks with Miss R. in the hall.

L Is for Ladd, who can run so, 't is said ;
But is that any reason for such a swelled head ?

M Stands for Marshall, he's surely a bird ;
He's sometimes known to be true to his word.

N Is for Nichols, he's not known to fame ;
But there are so few where N starts the name.

O Stands for Orr, so very august ;
When he bids us do something, we know that we must.

P Is for Patterson, whose recitations
He spiels with the unction of classic orations.

Q Stands for Quilty ; it's rather a sin ;
But he's the sole Q, so he'll have to go in.

R Is for Robbins, so handsome and clever.
Has he ever been known to flunk ? Goodness ! No ! Never !

THE ALPHEAN

S Stands for Stone, great genius and scanner,
Who thinks with the thinkers in artistic manner.

T Is for Taylor, an all-round athlete,
Who won the half-mile in the Middletown meet.

U Stands for Uhl, who will some day be great,
If he works very hard both early and late.

V 's for Vanhorn, who cuts up like the deuce,
But Frank Wells assists him, though that 's no excuse.

W 's for Wheat, adored by the girls,
Whose hair is arranged in nice little curls.

X Stands for unknown, among them young Schwartz.
He sticks to secretiveness like miners to quartz.

Y Is for Y's. Of course we mean Jake ;
His locals would surely make any man quake.

Z 's for Zeus, which we call Mr. McDuffee.
No insult is meant, so do not get huffy.

& Is an end to this tiresome recital.
You may read it, or feel it ; but still it 's not vital.

Mother Goose Up-to-Date.

THIS book was largely compiled by Miss Smith, the Sophomore class contributor to the Recorder, and has the unqualified endorsement of Miss Bigelow, who especially recommends it to her English Lit. classes for outside reading. It will be on sale daily at recess in room 38.

By way of advertisement, we publish the following choice extracts from the special high school edition :

I had a little pony,
His name was Cicero;
I lent him to a Junior,
To pull an A or so.
He plugged him,
He boned him,
He cut the pages out;
I would n't lend my pony now
On anyone's account.

Little Jack Horner
Sat in a corner
Taking his first exam.;
He pulled out his cribs,
Got caught by his nibs,
And now he takes time to cram.

Hey diddle, diddle, the cat and the fiddle
Can both make an awful meow;
And I judge by the strains that I hear each day
That the glee club showed them how.

The Senior's Farewell

Adieu, thou High School, large and grand,
The best and fairest in the land.
Adieu, ye halls of learning ample,
Of which I've had more than a sample.
Adieu, thou principal austere,
Whose glance the very Freshmen fear.
Adieu, ye teachers effervescing,
With knowledge awful and distressing.

Adieu to Latin, Greek and French,
To chemistry's ferocious stench.
Adieu Lit's trials and vexations,
And "Frog's" spontaneous recitations.
Adieu to mathematics cursed
By all who are not aptly versed.
Adieu once more to x and y ,
Again adieu geometry.
Adieu to all commercial courses,
Ye are the very pregnant sources
Of many a youth who thinks he can
At last become a business man,
And history which the brain but muddies,
Adieu at last to all my studies.

Adieu, thou maids with lovely graces,
With fairy feet and fairer faces.
Adieu, plump buns with raisins rare,
Spread on with butter choked with hair.
Farewell, thou homes of happy dreams,
And of the dreams we call our teams.

THE ALPHEAN

Farewell, our various publications,
With all your trials and tribulations.
Again farewell—oh, thunderation,
If I ain't lost that darn quotation
Which I intended here to use!
I must have crushed it with my shoes
When stamping round and round with glee,
Inflamed by old Terpsichore.
So once for all I bid adieu.
May fortune ever be with you.
Let this suffice for all the rest,
You are of all High Schools the best.

A Communication

To the Editors of The Alphean:

I heard a little while ago that a new annual was to be published in the school this year and that all the most prominent fellows were expected to send in a description of themselves, so I thought I would write to you. My name is Earle Clifton Marshall and not "Dick", as you may have heard my friends call me. I wear clothes which are most as "sporty" as Wesson's, and the fellows laugh at me for it but that is only because they are jealous. My chief purpose in coming to school is to manage things. I would like to run the school but as the school does n't seem to see the advisability of having a good manager, I shall have to be content with running "The Recorder," the baseball team and the quarter mile. I am the only Business Manager who has had any pity on the merchants. Instead of making the advertisers pay for a large share of the expenses of "The Recorder," I am going to have a moonlight sail and make the school pay for its own paper. This method is also much less work for me than "chasing ads," so everybody is pleased except the school, whose feelings are not to be considered. The baseball team made an awful row because I took them up to Holyoke for a game and the other team did n't show up. The fellows ought to rejoice because it saved them from being beaten, but they are so unreasonable that they don't see it that way.

Well, so long,

EARLE CLIFTON MARSHALL, '04.

P. S. If you put this letter on the first page instead of a frontispiece you will double your sales. As you will need the money, I overcame my natural modesty to tell you of it.

SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN

The Republican aims first to be the best local newspaper in the world. It covers the news of New England, and especially of Western Massachusetts, with painstaking thoroughness and intelligence.

It chronicles the daily events of America and the world with alertness, breadth of vision, discrimination and good taste.

Its Editorial treatment of Politics and all Current Affairs is conspicuous for its ability. It is sincere, earnest, fair, fearless, progressive, hopeful and philosophic.

The Republican maintains a strong and interesting Literary department, publishing much excellent fiction and poetry and a daily instalment of news, notices and reviews of books and their authors.

It devotes special attention and liberal space to Business and Financial interests, to outdoor sports and pastimes, to women's serious concerns and their diversions, to the theater, to education and philanthropy in all their various lines.

“Of speed not overhustling.”—Rowley '03.
